THE TEDDY ROOSEVELT REVOLVER

Whether as a cowboy, riding the plains out West, hunting in the wilds of Africa, leading his Rough Riders in combat or keeping world peace by showing military might, to Teddy Roosevelt life was, indeed, the Great Adventure.

No American President was better armed than Teddy Roosevelt; none understood guns better or used them so well.

This rest of the gun is plated with Silver. The beautiful scroll engraving cut, as P.D. Nimschke, one of the leading firearms engravers of the time, engraved TR's original.

The grips are ivory combined with for split resistance. On the left grip raised buffalo head and on the right famous "TR" monogram, just as he

At the battle of San Juan, TR picked off an enemy soldier “as neatly as a jackrabbit” with his revolver at ten paces while running uphill. He was steady under fire.

Within the well-guarded White House he was careful to place a gun next to his pillow every night—not out of fear, but with the belief that every man is ultimately responsible for his own destiny. He knew firsthand the use of weapons, of force, of war. Teddy Roosevelt’s willingness to fight for what he believed in made his term in office one of the most peaceful our country has ever known. When he made a show of force, no one ever questioned his readiness to take the next step.

Now, to honor undoubtedly one of the greatest and most exciting Americans who ever lived, The American Historical Foundation is proud to announce the Teddy Roosevelt Revolver. What better symbol of this famous man who loved guns than an firing reproduction of his favorite sidearm.

24-Karat Gold And Sterling Silver

This is a genuine, firing Single Action Army—in fact, most of the parts would probably interchange with TR’s original. This is the early model, 7-1/2" barreled model, chambered in .44-40, and the following components are plated with genuine 24-Karat Gold; ejector rod housing, ejector rod, trigger hammer and cylinder.
